Course overview:

Traditionally, research on prejudice and stereotyping has focused on the psychological mechanisms that lead people to be biased against others. More recent research has begun to also shed light on the psychological legacy of prejudice and stereotyping for their targets. This survey lecture course will review the major contributions of each of these literatures, providing students with a broad understanding of both classic and current issues in the field. The course will be divided into three sections: bias (i.e., the perpetrator’s perspective), stigma (i.e., the target’s perspective), and getting along across group differences. Special emphasis will be placed on understanding and evaluating original research articles. Class discussion will be encouraged.

Grading:

25%: your highest scoring exam
15%: your second highest scoring exam
20%: section attendance (you may miss 1 section w/o penalty). Sections begin ***
35%: poster (end-of-semester assignment); see page 5. Due ***
5%: RPP requirement

Assigned readings:

The books include readings that we will use in class daily, so you should purchase your own copies. Also, please keep in mind that our institution adheres to copyright law, so any copyrighted material should not be copied or duplicated in any manner.

To purchase the textbooks, please follow the instructions below:
Step 1: Log on to https://students.universityreaders.com/store/
Step 2: Create an account or log in if you have an existing account to purchase.
Step 3: Easy-to-follow instructions guide you through the rest of the ordering process. Payment can be made by all major credit cards.
Step 4: After purchasing, you can access your FREE 30% PDF by logging into your account and clicking My Digital Materials to get started on your readings right away. If you experience any difficulties, please email orders@cognella.com or call 800.200.3908 ext. 503.

RPP requirement
In order to learn how to create an RPP account and start participating in experiments, please go to the following link: http://psychology.berkeley.edu/undergraduate-program/research-participation-program and click on "Important Information for Students." If you have any questions, you can contact RPP at rpp@berkeley.edu.

Policy on conflicts with academic calendar:

Please take note of the following guidelines concerning scheduling conflicts with academic requirements, endorsed by Berkeley’s Academic Senate:

http://tinyurl.com/schedconflictguidelines

Note specifically:

It is the student's responsibility to notify the instructor in writing by the second week of the semester of any potential conflict and to recommend a solution.

Paper/poster presentations:

Professional psychologists regularly attend regional or national conferences to keep up with the latest research in the field. Such conferences often feature talks as well as poster sessions. Posters are summaries of research that people can stop in front of and read.

Although conference posters are usually summaries of completed studies, in this class you are to prepare a poster presenting an IDEA and PREDICTIONS for your own experimental study (as if you had completed your own study). The poster is to include a title at the top, your name, an abstract, a brief summary of relevant literature (to be chosen from the assigned readings), a design proposal, and a set of predictions presented in graphical format. You will become familiar with the necessary skills for preparing a poster during the course of the class, and you will be provided with examples of posters throughout the course as well as more specific guidelines. Posters will be graded by your GSI only. In the event that you are unsatisfied with your grade, you must first try to resolve with your GSI. If you remain unsatisfied, Prof.  will re-grade your poster, with the understanding that a) your grade may go up or down; and b) the grade Prof.  assigns is final. Posters will be due on ***.
