You're invited!

On Wednesday, May 8 and Thursday, May 9, join us for the Jacobs Spring Design Showcase. Featuring project displays and demos along with conversation and refreshments, our open house is an opportunity to meet student makers and join the design conversation at Berkeley.
Over the course of two days, students in 16 courses, along with members of campus design clubs and the current cohort of Innovation Catalysts grant recipients, will share their work. You’ll see wide-ranging designs engaging themes from mobility and biodesign to health and protest. All are welcome to attend; the showcase is free and open to the public.

History Adrift: A Conversation with Namwali Serpell! 5/3/19

Greetings writers,

We hope your Spring is wrapping up nicely!

We’re thrilled to invite you to the last event of our semester-long celebration of reading, History Adrift: A Conversation with Namwali Serpell! An award-winning writer and associate professor of English at UC Berkeley, Serpell has recently published her first novel, The Old Drift, to much critical acclaim. We are honored to collaborate with the SLC Language Exchange Program to host the first on-campus stop of her international book tour!

Join us on Friday, May 3rd from 12-2PM as she reads from her novel and provides insight into her writing process. To help us plan, please RSVP by Wednesday, May 1st.

Don’t miss this exciting opportunity to hear from an up-and-coming novelist from Cal’s very own writing community!

Diversifying Psychology Weekend, 7/27/19

We are pleased to announce the University of Nebraska-Lincoln’s inaugural Diversifying Psychology Weekend. The weekend event will take place on July 27. It is intended to help students from underrepresented backgrounds to better understand the graduate school application process and develop application materials. The flyer is attached.

Some travel support and lodging will provided on a competitive basis. We encourage any students from underrepresented backgrounds, broadly defined, to apply. Applicants will be asked to submit a brief essay about how the weekend fits their needs and some background information. Applicants can follow this link to submit the application. Applications are due June 15.
